PRESENTS

TWELFTH ANNUAL
JANUARY 14 – FEBRUARY 15 | MARCH 2 – APRIL 9

Celebrate Song!
As TDSF enters our twelfth season, we thank all of you for being with us on this journey! Our supporters, led by an outstanding board of directors and a generous community of donors, have made it possible for our festival to transform the cultural life in Tucson. The vision of founders Jack Forsythe and Cecile Follansbee, plus tons of hard work by a devoted group of music lovers, created something unique and lasting.

Twelve years ago, it was hard to imagine Tucson’s performing arts organizations coordinating and collaborating with mutually supportive programming. Few could dream of Tucson being regarded as a cultural destination for many of the greatest singers in the world. Today, we are grateful to be able to say we achieved both of those, and with your continued support, we will continue to grow.

For 2024, the TDSF Wesley Green Composer Project brings to Tucson the premiere of a commissioned song cycle by renowned composer Jimmy López Bellido; extraordinary vocalists from the most important venues in the world will share the stage with Tucson’s performing arts groups; TDSF education and outreach continue to expand and inspire future musicians and music lovers.

We are honored to be part of this wonderful organization and grateful to the supporters who have made it possible for TDSF to bring great voices to Tucson.
Let’s connect!

The History of the Tucson Desert Song Festival

Tucson has a long tradition of classical music leadership in the Southwest. The University of Arizona has offered instruction in music since the late 1800s, and the Tucson Symphony Orchestra is the oldest continuing professional performing arts organization in Arizona.

With these and other artistic partners as a foundation, the Tucson Desert Song Festival was formed in 2010 as a Section 501(c)(3) non-profit corporation by a group of music-loving volunteers. The driving force behind the festival was Jack Forsythe, co-founder of the successful St. Paul, Minnesota Summer Song Festival, which ran from 2002 to 2006.

Under Jack’s leadership, the festival was founded to coordinate, subsidize and publicize a unique classical voice festival highlighting Tucson’s rich musical tradition with the aim of bringing to Tucson internationally renowned vocal performers to celebrate and advance vocal music as an art form.

A Vision Realized

And it’s working! According to the Arizona Daily Star, “The Tucson Desert Song Festival is a bonanza of gorgeous music. Arts groups and the fest folk have teamed up to bring us internationally known talent, as well as rising stars in the art song field.”

Throughout the winter and spring of 2024, the Tucson Desert Song Festival will present its 12th festival, showcasing, in collaboration with our performing partners, one of the widest array of world-class vocal performers since the festival’s inception.

Clearly, Jack Forsythe’s vision has been realized, enriching Tucson’s cultural life in a way that will impact our community for generations to come.

“MUSIC PRODUCES A KIND OF PLEASURE WHICH HUMAN NATURE CANNOT DO WITHOUT.”

— Confucius

Jack’s Love of Classical Voice and Art Song

While Jack had a love of most forms of vocal performance, he had a particularly deep love of art song. An art song is a vocal music composition, usually written for one voice with piano or other instrumental accompaniment and usually in the classical tradition. An art song is most often a musical setting of an independent poem or text, intended for the concert repertory as part of a recital.

Throughout the winter and spring of 2024, the Tucson Desert Song Festival will present its 12th festival, showcasing, in collaboration with our performing partners, one of the widest array of world-class vocal performers since the festival’s inception.

Clearly, Jack Forsythe’s vision has been realized, enriching Tucson’s cultural life in a way that will impact our community for generations to come.

The German word for such classical song is lied (singular) and lieder (plural), In France the term is mélodie, and in Italy, Romanza. Depending on the origin of the art song, these terms are often used interchangeably.

In her book Song: A Guide to Art Song Style and Literature, Carol Kimball describes art song in this way:

“Music is often praised for its poetic expression, and poetry for its musical sound. Music without words has its own sense, its own causes, meanings and aesthetics...Poetry also has its own sensibilities – and they are different from those of music, although some of the terms are similar. But in an art song, a composer blends music and poetry in such a way that it is impossible to think of them apart. We do not hear poetry set to music, we hear a song.”

Honoring Jack and Terry Forsythe

It is difficult to adequately thank Jack for the contribution that his beloved Tucson Desert Song Festival has made to the Tucson community. Jack had a passion and dedication to music and a genuine love of our community with whom he happily shared that passion for nearly 8 years. His vision, as well as the generous support Jack and Terry have graciously provided since the festival’s inception, have enabled the festival to grow and flourish.

We are committed to continuing Jack’s work, and we are deeply dedicated to preserving for years to come the imprint Jack has made on our community. Toward this end, the Board of Directors of the Tucson Desert Song Festival, led by President Jeannette Segel, has established The Jack and Terry Forsythe Recital Series to honor Jack and Terry.

Our goal is to raise funds for the specific purpose of continuing the tradition of including world-class classical voice recitals as a key part of the Tucson Desert Song Festival in the years ahead.

The initial commission was serendipitous for Tucson Desert Song Festival. The commissioning bug bit hard; over the coming years, we would fund an instrumental work in her honor. Chamber Music’s own new-music program, when his wife died, Green memorialized her through song. When he moved to Tucson from Connecticut in 2003, Green, a retired insurance adjustor who had practiced as a pianist. ... I wanted to express who I was as a pianist. ... I wanted to BE the music, not just PLAY the music. I wanted to make something great and profound and moving. ... I knew I couldn’t BE music by being a pianist, so I became a composer. This act, this decision, was walking BE the music, not just PLAY the music. I wanted to make something great and profound and moving. ... I knew I couldn’t BE music by being a pianist, so I became a composer. This act, this decision, was walking to continue his philanthropic work with the Tucson Desert Song Festival. The initial commission was serendipitous for Michael Fabiano’s Feb. 15 premiere of Jimmy López Bellido’s new song cycle with poems by Nilo Cruz continues the Tucson Desert Song Festival’s Wesley Green Composer Project, a commissioning series that introduces major new song cycles by leading American composers.

The project launched during the 2020 festival with Richard Danielpour’s Songs of Love and Loss, written especially for soprano Hila Plitmann. In 2021 came Jake Heggie’s What I Miss the Most for mezzo Jamie Barton, followed by Jennifer Higdon’s Summertime Music for soprano Sasha Cooke in 2022 and Ricky Ian Gordon’s Marvin Gaye Songs on poems of Vievee Francis for baritone Justin Austin in 2023. The new works have been revelatory to audiences inclined to assume that art song begins and ends with Schubert. The project has taken care to engage experienced composers of music that’s both singable and listenable, working closely with specific voices they know well.

The series has been underwritten by Wesley Green, a retired insurance adjustor who moved to Tucson from Connecticut in 2003. When his wife died, Green memorialized her through song. The commissioning bug bit hard; over the next years Green supported further AFCM works, and ultimately jumped at the chance to continue his philanthropic work with the Tucson Desert Song Festival. The initial commission was serendipitous for Danielpour, who had been hoping to write a cycle for Israeli soprano Plitmann, setting texts in Farsi by the 13th-century Persian poet Rumi. Danielpour and Plitmann had discussed Rumi over lunch one day, and before long, Danielpour got a call from TDSF director George Hanson asking for a new song cycle, preferably in a language other than English.

“The entire arc of the work is about love, loss, and the eventual sense of renewal that sometimes follows,” Danielpour told the Arizona Jewish Post shortly before the premiere. Danielpour had written music in every genre, including an opera with a libretto by Toni Morrisson, but song has featured prominently in his catalog since the early 1990s. He even included major vocal parts in his Symphony No. 2 and String Quartet No. 3. By the 2020 commission, he was well aware of what the Human voice can (and cannot) do—especially the voice of Plitmann, whom Danielpour has described as “like a little sister.”

Jake Heggie is perhaps more closely associated with vocal music than any other living American classical composer. His catalog includes a cornucopia of nearly 300 art songs, as well as nine full-length operas, headed by the highly acclaimed Dead Man Walking. From the beginning of his composing career, in the mid 1990s, his music was championed by the likes of mezzo Frederica von Stade, whom Danielpour has described as “like a little sister.”

From the beginning of his composing career, in the mid 1990s, his music was championed by the likes of mezzo Frederica von Stade, whom Danielpour has described as “like a little sister.”

What I Miss the Most was Heggie’s rapid response to the COVID-19 lockdown in the spring of 2020. He and Jamie Barton began asking their friends what they missed most during the pandemic, and Heggie set five of the responses to music—texts from the unlikely circle of mezzo Joyce DiDonato, Broadway diva Patti LuPone, death-penalty abolitionist Sister Helen Prejean, Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg, and musician-writer Kathleen Kelly.

Reviewing the cycle’s UK premiere in the Guardian, critic Flora Willson found “moments of poise and beauty” in the score and praised Barton’s “bewitching musical sense.” The same year that Heggie and Barton introduced What I Miss the Most at TDSF, the pair received a Grammy nomination for their album Unexpected Shados—recorded, unfortunately, before Heggie had completed the new cycle, but indicative of the response to their work together.

Our 2022 festival featured composer Jennifer Higdon, writing especially for Sasha Cooke. Summertime Music, Higdon told the Arizona Daily Star, was inspired directly by Cooke’s artistry. “When I heard Sasha sing, my heart responded with a feeling much like that incredible contentment one feels on a summer’s eve,” Higdon told the Star. “It is a composer’s joy to be inspired by the beautiful tone and exquisite artistry of such an artist.”

Higdon has received three Grammys and one Pulitzer—all for concertos—but her vocal and choral worklist is substantial, too. One of her most ballyhooed projects is her sole opera to date, Cold Mountain. Higdon didn’t meet Cooke until shortly before the premiere of Summertime Music, but she had studied the soprano’s voice carefully through recordings. For texts, Higdon chose eight poems, three of which she wrote herself. “I wanted to celebrate the joy and breath of fresh air that you feel in summer,” she said.

The Arizona Daily Star’s Cathalena Burch responded enthusiastically to the score. “Higdon, who lives in Philadelphia, was thinking more East Coast than punishing Tucson summertime when she wrote about gathering blackberries and breathing in the sweet perfume of fresh-mowed grass,” Burch began, “but the warmth of Higdon’s music and the sentiments expressed in the texts certainly spoke to us. Higdon’s song cycle, based on poems written mostly by women including Higdon, took us through the emotions we feel in summertime—even in the sweltering heat of a Tucson summer—rejuvenation, freedom and a sense of adventure.”

Last year’s festival featured a fresh song cycle by one of the hottest and hittest composers around, Ricky Ian Gordon. The work, titled Marvin Gaye Songs, was written specifically for the baritone voice of Gordon’s close colleague and rising opera star Justin Austin. Gordon has never seemed concerned about fitting into a particular genre. As a freshman at Carnegie Mellon, he was just as besotted with Stephen Sondheim as he was with Dmitri Shostakovich. He’d thought he would become a classical pianist, but that ambition lasted barely a semester.

As Gordon himself wrote in Spin magazine, “Something felt wrong but I couldn’t put my finger on it. ... I did not feel I was able to express who I was as a pianist. ... I wanted to BE the music, not just PLAY the music. I wanted to make something great and profound and moving. ... I knew I couldn’t BE music by being a pianist, so I became a composer. This act, this decision, was walking into the light for me.”

And now we reach the final year of the Wesley Green Composer Project, we are thrilled to present Jimmy López Bellido’s new song cycle Quiet Poems with text by Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Nilo Cruz, written for the soaring tenor voice of Michael Fabiano. On those grounds alone, the latest commission seems likely to join its predecessors in wide circulation beyond their birthplace—the Tucson Desert Song Festival.

Her performing career has taken her throughout the United States as well on tours in Italy, China, and Australia with additional concert performances in Germany, Spain, Austria, and Luxembourg. Dr. Daughnais is the chair of vocal studies at the University of Arizona.

A soloist in the Grammy-winning album Duarte: The Complete Choral Works, Cecilia Duarte has been praised by The New York Times as “a creamy-voiced mezzo-soprano.” Born in Chihuahua, Mexico, Duarte has performed around the world in a variety of music styles, especially early and contemporary music. Duarte created the role of Renata in the first mariachi opera, Cruzar la Cara de la Luna, with Mariachi Vargas de Tecalitlán in 2010, which has since been performed with such companies as Houston Grand Opera, Chicago Lyric Opera, San Diego Opera, Châtelet Theater in Paris, and Teatro Nacional Sucre in Ecuador.

The recipient of the 2014 Beverly Sills Artist Award and the 2014 Richard Tucker Award, internationally renowned tenor Michael Fabiano is the first singer to win both awards in the same year and is considered one of the great voices of our time. Of Fabiano’s debut as Lensky in Tchaikovsky’s Eugene Onegin at the Royal Opera, The Sunday Times in London wrote: “I can’t think of a Lensky at Covent Garden who has held the audience so spellbound in 40 years of Onegin-going… a glorious debut.” Recent appearances at The Metropolitan Opera, Vienna State Opera, and San Francisco Opera drew critical accolades.

Jocelyn Hagen composes music that has been described as “simply magical” (Firefare Magazine) and “dramatic and deeply moving” (Star Tribune, Minneapolis/St. Paul). She pushes the expectations of musicians and audiences with large-scale multimedia works, electro-acoustic music, dance, opera, and publishing. The rarity of her compositions are for the voice. Her melodic music is rhythmically driven and texturally complex, rich in color and deeply heartfelt.

The Venezuelan-born, Spanish conductor José Luis Gomez began his musical career as a violinist but was catapulted to international attention when he won first prize in the 2010 International Sir Georg Solti Conductor’s Competition in Frankfurt, Germany, securing a sensational and rare unanimous decision from the jury. In 2016, he was named music director of the Tucson Symphony Orchestra.

Marcy Harriell is an American actress, singer, and writer. She is best known for her appearances on Broadway, starring in the Tony Award-winning musicals In the Heights and Rent after starring as Maria in the 1996 National tour of West Side Story. She went on to star in the Broadway musical Lennon, featuring the music of John Lennon, and has been a series regular on NBC’s Ed, HBO’s Nurse Jackie, and the CBS courtroom dramedy Queer Supreme.

Conductor Eric Holtan, the founding music director of True Concord Voices & Orchestra, previously served as associate conductor of the Southern Arizona Symphony Orchestra and as the assistant director of the Tucson Symphony Orchestra Chorus. He continues his work in church music, which he began as an organist at age 12, as minister of music, art, and liturgy at Dove of Peace Lutheran Church.

Japanese-born choreographer Chieko Imada, assistant artistic director of Ballet Tucson, has danced professionally with companies including Inoue Ballet of Tokyo and Ballet Arizona. She has staged many classical ballets and has also created numerous original contemporary works during her more than three decades with Ballet Tucson. She also appeared regularly with the Onn Theatre of Dance and Tenth St. Danceworks modern troupes in Tucson.

Mezzo-soprano Kristin Daughnais is highly regarded for her artistry and versatility. She has worked in a variety of genres including musical theater, opera, concert, oratorio, chamber music, and solo recitals. Her performing career has taken her throughout the United States as well on tours in Italy, China, and Australia with additional concert performances in Germany, Spain, Austria, and Luxembourg. Dr. Daughnais is the chair of vocal studies at the University of Arizona.

Pianist Welz Kauffman served as CEO of the Ravinia Festival from 2000-2020 and throughout his tenure ensured the accessibility of classical music to Chicagoland residents of diverse backgrounds. As such, Kauffman expanded the The Steans Institute for Young Artists, which transforms gifted musicians into expert performing artists. As a pianist, Kauffman won the Tanglewood Young Artist Award and performed concertos with five prestigious orchestras. He is a regular performer at the Ravinia Festival where he often accompanies Ravinia-commissioned projects.

Award-winning composer Jimmy López Bellido is considered “one of the most interesting young composers anywhere today” (Chicago Sun-Times) and an “expert in orchestration” (New York Times) with a distinct voice that is “adventurous and winning” (Denver Post). His works have been performed by leading orchestras around the world and heard in prestigious venues such as Carnegie Hall, Kennedy Center, the Sydney Opera House, Gewandhaus Leipzig, Vienna’s Musikverein, and Konzerthaus Berlin. In 2015, the Lyric Opera of Chicago commissioned him a full-length opera based on the bestselling novel Bel Canto, which premiered to critical acclaim and became the bestselling opera of Lyric’s 2015-2016 season.

Founded in New York City in 1980 by artistic director and choreographer Mark Morris, the Mark Morris Dance Group has been called “the preeminent modern dance organization of our time” (Yo-Yo Ma), and its members have received the “highest praise for their technical aplomb, their musicality, and their sheer human authenticity” (Bloomberg News). Live music and community engagement are vital components of the Dance Group, whose repertory ranges from 17th and 18th century works by John Wilson and Henry Purcell to more recent scores.

Mexican-born conductor Roberto Kalb is the newly appointed music director of Detroit Opera. Kalb made multiple debuts last season with San Francisco Opera, Compañía Nacional de Ópera at the Palacio de Bellas Artes in Mexico City, San Diego Opera, and Lyric Opera of Kansas City. Other recent collaborations include the Opéra Orchestre National Montpellier, Wolf Trap Opera, and Opera Theatre of Saint Louis. Additional highlights include productions with Michigan Opera Theatre, Florida Grand Opera, Tidals Opera, Kentucky Opera, Opera Maine, the Orquesta Carlos Chavez in Mexico City, and the Orquesta Sinfônica da USP in São Paulo.

American soprano Katie Van Kooten’s operatic and concert appearances continue to thrill audiences and earn her praise for using her “powerful, gleaming soprano” to bring vibrancy and life to all her performances. Operatic highlights from past seasons include the Marschallin in Der Rosenkavalier with the Metropolitan Opera, Liù in Turandot with Opera New Orleans, Magda in La Rondine at Covent Garden, and critically acclaimed performances as Ellen Orford in Britten’s Peter Grimes with Oper Frankfurt and Houston Grand Opera.

Composer and pianist Ethan Iverson was a founding member of avant-garde jazz trio The Bad Plus, who have been praised by The New York Times as “better than anyone at melding the sensibilities of post-60’s jazz and indie rock.” During his 17-year tenure, TBP performed in venues as diverse as the Village Vanguard, Carnegie Hall, and Bonnaroo. In 2017, Iverson co-curated a major centennial celebration of Thelonious Monk at Duke University and in 2018 premiered an original piano concerto with the American Composers Orchestra.

GUEST ARTISTS

The late Jessye Norman described MacArthur Fellow and three-time GRAMMY winner for Best Vocal Jazz Album Cécile McLorin Salvant as “a unique voice supported by an intelligence and full-fledged musicality which lights up every note she sings.” Salvant has a gift for storytelling and curating layered, evocative programs that draw on connections between vaudeville, blues, international folk traditions, theater, jazz, and classical music. Born and raised in Miami to a French mother and a Haitian father, she received a degree in French law while also studying baroque music and jazz at the Darius Milhaud Music Conservatory in Aix-en-Provence, France.

American pianist and collaborator Kevin J. Miller is acclaimed for his dynamically artful performances. Recent collaborations include recitals with international tenor Lawrence Brownlee at Carnegie Hall and Houston Grand Opera, countertenor John Holiday at Kennedy Center and The Barbican in London, Joseph Calleja and Nadine Sierra at the Supreme Court of the United States, as well as an appearance with Calleja on NPR’s Tiny Desk concert series.

A French native, Laurent Philippe has established himself as a premier pianist and vocal coach to some of the world’s greatest singers including Jonathan Abernathy, Ambur Braid, Michael Fabiano, and Denyce Graves. He has enjoyed a 19-year tenureship as a faculty member at the celebrated Academy of Vocal Arts in Philadelphia and has worked as a guest coach for numerous opera companies and young artist programs across the globe. Philippe studied at the Conservatoire National Supérieur de Musique de Paris from which he graduated with two Premier Prix.

American mezzo-soprano Ronnita Miller has performed internationally on some of the world’s leading opera and concert stages. Most recently, she appeared as Big Stone in Matthew Aucoin’s Eurydice with the Metropolitan Opera, Filipyevna in Eugene Onegin with San Francisco Opera, and Ella in Anthony Davis’ X: The Life and Times of Malcolm X with Michigan Opera Theatre. Other recent credits include her signature role of Erda in Siegfried at Lyric Opera of Chicago and further performances of Erda in Das Rheingold at Teatro Real in Madrid.

As a nonprofit organization, the Tucson Desert Song Festival relies on your support to assist Tucson’s arts organization to engage world-class vocalists to perform with them during our multi-week festival. It’s a costly endeavor, but individuals and businesses in our community make it possible.

HOW CAN YOU HELP MAKE OUR COMMUNITY SING?

You can help put breathtaking programs on stages throughout our community by making a gift today. You’ll enjoy our performing partners’ amazing performances even more knowing that your generosity has made it happen.

Our mission is to promote Tucson’s performing arts organizations and to bring world-class singers to Tucson with the goal of enriching the experiences of our audiences and establishing Tucson as a winter cultural destination.

Your support will enable us to:

• Assist many of Tucson’s performing arts organizations to engage some of the country’s finest vocal artists to perform with them during our annual winter song festival.
• Publicize our unique classical voice festival and the rich musical life of Tucson locally and around the country.
• Make possible a series of master classes, panel discussions and educational visits to our schools to enhance our community’s appreciation and love of music.
